RARE WINE AUCTION BOOK

All wines have been stored at 55 degrees by original buyers unless otherwise noted. Many of these wines are not available anywhere except auction. The boutique Pinot Noirs, Syrahs, Chardonnays, Merlots, & Cabernets from California and Oregon are from Winery Direct suppliers and are in some cases not available to anyone except those fortunate enough to be on the mailing list. Those of you familiar with these wine will recognise that immediately. Imported wines from France & Italy are also rare and in some cases not available even at auction.

We have placed a low reserve (minimum bid) on every wine for your convenience. Bidding higher than the street or estimated market value is what drives the value (see Auction pricing next page for more information).

If you haven't had some of these highly prized wines, you are in for a treat. They are fabulous! We recommend that any wine purchased be allowed to settle in your home or cellar for 30 days or more before consuming. Any wine transported by vehicle needs rest.

Good luck
and bon appétit!

AUCTION PRICING

The value is estimated on current market pricing. These wines are rare and not available except through auctions or on the internet. The ultimate price is determined by what the wine is worth to you. You may pay $30.00 more than the estimated value today and a year from now it could go up $50.00 or more in value. We have placed a value as a guide only. You may bid what you feel is a fair market price for a wine you really want. Don't be intimidated, have fun!

2005 Aubert, Ritchie Vineyard: Stephen Tanzer rated this wine 96+ points, Robert Parker 96 points/ 2 bottles.
"Slightly hazy greenish-yellow color. Captivating, highly nuanced nose offers lime zest, lemon candy, nutmeg and crushed stone. Dense, thick and powerful, but for all its intensity this offers a magically light touch. The pineapple and crushed stone flavors are framed and intensified by sappy, perfectly integrated acidity and complicated by a leesy element. Boasts a truly three-dimensional texture that's rare for a dry white wine, not to mention extraordinary sweetness of fruit and length."

2005 Aubert, Estate Lauren Chardonnay, Sonoma Coast: Robert Parker rated this wine 97 points/ 2 bottles. "A blockbuster, the light straw/gold/green-hued 2005 Chardonnay Lauren Vineyard exhibits huge aromatics of spring flowers, white currants, peaches, honeysuckle, and smoked nuts. Enormous body, great acidity, superb palate penetration, and a savory vibrancy suggest this stunning Chardonnay will provide immense pleasure over the next decade or more."

2003 Bouchard Père et Fils, Chevalier-Montrachet: Robert Parker rated this wine 94 points, "Very minerally aromas of apple, iodine and baking spices. Thick and densely packed but quite closed; comes across as more classically dry than the "regular" Chevalier-Montrachet, as well as more difficult to taste today. But this has terrific verve and a very long and impressively suave finish. Director Hervet, who calls 2003 a great vintage for Chevalier-Montrachet, says that this will ultimately top the last wine, but today it's not obvious."

QUESTION: Why is a 95 point Burgundy White better than a 95 point California Chardonnay?

ANSWER: It's not, but it is however different! The White Burgundy is usually has better balance to last over time. It has more acidity to let it age longer therefore increasing it's value to collectors.

Also most wine and cuisine masters consider White Burgundy better with food due to it's balanced acidity. California Chardonnay may taste much better younger though. Just some simple points to help in your decisions.

1991 Romanée-Conti, Echezeaux: Wine Spectator rated this wine 93 points. Robert Parker rated this wine 92.

"The Echezeaux is usually DRC's lightest wine. The 1991 displays a deep ruby color, a tight but promising bouquet of smoky oak and rich red and black fruits, and moderate tannin in the finish. More backward and dense than normal, it should be at its best between 1996-2008."
